

April 2, 2026 |

Stories

World Autism Acceptance Day

April is Autism Acceptance Month, and today is World Autism Acceptance Day. This is an opportunity to celebrate the contributions that autistic people bring to the labour movement and to our province.

It's a chance to challenge some assumptions about our workplaces, our communities and our unions — about what conditions and environments are truly welcoming and inclusive to everyone, and allow all of us to live full, meaningful lives in connection with each other.

Thank you to autistic and neurodivergent workers and self-advocates everywhere who are helping us to advance our shared understanding of neurodiversity. Let's keep working to ensure everyone has the supports they need and the respect they deserve.